Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

IN Voltaire's "Candide" there was a benevolent philosopher named Doctor Pangloss who, preaching the philosophy that this is the best of all possible worlds, trusted therefore all men and resolved to meet misfortune without so much as once fighting back. He was a pacific soul in a world of strife—and the world finally sent him reeling and battered into retirement. Friends tried to inveigle him into another political argument, but Pangloss, after calmly hearing both sides, remarked over the good stout brick wall that surrounded his property, "That may be all very well—but I am going to work in my garden."

New Heavy Taxes on Great Wealth Proposed by F.D.

Would Make Inheritance Levy Retire the National Debt

A SURPRISE MOVE

Produces "Share the Wealth" Program on Eve of Adjournment

Copyright Associated Press
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Before congress had recovered from its surprise at President Roosevelt's call for share-the-wealth taxes the president's close confidants passed the word Thursday that he is considering a new and broad NRA designed in a sense to be a companion measure to the tax program.

The tax plan, intended to break up great fortunes and reduce large incomes, was greeted by expressions of gratification from the "left" and criticism from the "right."

It was presented to congress late Wednesday.

The revived NRA which the president is said to be considering is pictured as an effort to increase mass purchasing power. Thus, friends of the administration said, it would be akin to the tax plan.

The senate finance committee Thursday refused to add any of President Roosevelt's wealth tax proposals in approving a house resolution extending 500 million dollars in nuisance and excise levies expiring June 30.

"Share the Wealth" Plan
WASHINGTON—(AP)—A share-the-wealth tax program based on the philosophy that big fortunes are created by collective rather than individual effort was submitted to Congress Wednesday by President Roosevelt with an implication that he hoped for action this session.

That he should ask enactment of such a broad plan when leaders were bending every effort to get congress ready for adjournment my mid-July startled some.

Republican leaders said that to enact such a comprehensive program would prolong the session indefinitely.

Briefly, what the president suggested as a "sound public policy of encouraging a wider distribution of wealth," was this:

1. Imposition of inheritance and gift taxes on top of the present estate taxes, to be segregated for reduction of the national debt.
2. Higher taxes on incomes above $1,000,000 a year.
3. Graduated taxes on corporation incomes ranging from 10 1/2 to 16 1/2 per cent instead of the present flat 13 1/2 per cent.
4. A constitutional amendment permitting the taxation of incomes from new tax-free state, county and city bonds.
5. The "simplification" of corporate structures by elimination through taxation of "unnecessary holding companies in all lines of business," and

Revolted Convict Miners Surrender

348 Rioters Come Up Out of Depths of Kansas State Prison Mine

LANEING, Kan.—(AP)—A score of officers and guards led by Warden Lacey Simpson subdued 348 rioting convicts Wednesday in the darkness of the Kansas state prison coal mine and ended a destructive 21-hour mutiny.

Soon the first lift load of mutineers came to the surface and they marched past a line of heavily armed prison, county and state highway officers to their cell block 60 feet away.

In 35 minutes the evacuation of the 730-foot mine level, where the riot occurred, was complete.

Damage to the mine was estimated at $25,000.

Some 40 of the leaders will be placed in solitary confinement.

The 348 rioting prisoners, just all their demands, including discharge of Dr. David F. Parker, 32-year-old penitentiary physician, "better cooked food," and immunity from punishment.

Steps were taken quickly to learn the identities of the leaders of the men who seized control of the mine shortly after midnight Tuesday, and held out with guards as hostages until conquered by smoke and guns.

"A lot of these men were not voluntarily taking part in the strike," Warden Simpson said.

$40,000 Generator Is Authorized for Municipal Plant

City Council Unanimously Approves, Ending 3-Year Discussion

SANITARY WARNING

Dr. G. E. Cannon Urges Elimination of Open Toilets Within City

A three-year-old controversy over purchase of a new generator for the municipally-owned water and light plant was settled Tuesday night when the city council passed an ordinance authorizing the Board of Public Affairs to purchase the generator at a cost of approximately $40,000.

The vote to purchase the new turbine was unanimous. The Board of Public Affairs had previously recommended that the new machinery be bought.

Necessity of the turbine also had been pointed out by members of other city councils, and by George Sandefur, superintendent of the water and light plant.

The ordinance Tuesday night authorized the board to make the purchase after first advertising for bids and that the contract for the purchase be let to the lowest responsible bidder.

Dr. G. E. Cannon, member of the board of health, condemned open toilets within the city limits in a verbal report to the council. He urged that action be taken to remedy the situation.

Dr. P. B. Carrigan reported progress on the mosquito campaign in Hope, urging that property owners cut weeds and take other steps to abolish harboring and breeding places of the mosquito.

Murdered?

The amazingly tangled heart-ties of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett Candelino (above) surrounded her death with a mystery that was heightened by the disappearance of her ex-convict first husband, John Candelino, in whose home near Nyack, N. Y., her body was found. She had been divorced recently by Alfred M. Best, wealthy broker.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

—BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Huey Long will barnstorm the country this summer, drumming up converts for his share-the-wealth scheme.

To let the country know just what this $5,000,000,000 scheme is, Long offered it in the senate, with old age pension, unemployment insurance, and child welfare provisions, as a substitute for Roosevelt's security setup. To raise the money, the Kingfish would tax all fortunes over $1,000,000 and limit individual fortunes to $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 with taxes ranging from 1 to 99 per cent. Republicans joined Democrats in shouting down the plan.

The senator has been shipping a bit lately—both as a national figure and among friends and near-friends he has in Washington.

Success or failure of the speaking tour will give Huey a better idea of his possibilities as a presidential candidate.

He isn't saying anything about it, but his closest associates expect him to contest against Roosevelt in next year's Democratic primaries, to make trouble even though he has no hope of nomination. Meanwhile, Roosevelt isn't worrying much about Huey as he was at one time. Events have tended to isolate the Kingfish as an individual phenomenon rather than a dangerous leader of a popular left wing movement.

Breaks on Upper Arkansas Relieve Pressure of Flood

Peak Estimates Reduced by Weather Bureau—Crest Awaited

RED STILL RISING

28.9 Feet at Fulton—Up 2 Feet in the Last 24 Hours

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Five levee breaks on the upper Arkansas river during the past 48 hours prompted the Weather Bureau here to make slight downward revisions in the alarming crests previously forecast for the river's lowest reaches.

Openings in northwest Arkansas' retaining dykes which sent floods over thousands of acres of rich farmlands Wednesday and the day before, relieved the pressure elsewhere.

Overnight the river fell 2.5 feet at Fort Gibson, Okla., Thursday morning, more than half a foot at Fort Smith, and over 3 feet at Danville.

Continued rises were shown at Ozark, Morrilton, Dardanelle, Little Rock and Pine Bluff, but they were slight compared to the recent steady upsurge.

Although the crest revisions tended to relieve the tension there was no letup in the day and night battle of hundreds of levee workers scattered along the Arkansas and half a dozen lesser streams.

Red River at 28.9

Red river at Fulton continued to rise the past 24 hours. At 7 a. m. Thursday the reading was 28.9 feet, up nearly two feet from Wednesday morning. Flood stage is 25 feet.

No breaks have occurred. The Hope office of the FERA stood ready to dispatch between 200 and 300 men in case of an emergency.

The river is predicted to go 34 feet by Saturday, J. W. Cronk of the Shreveport weather bureau, has forecast.

Rivers Still Rising

LITTLE ROCK—Desperate battles to protect levees at many strategic points were being waged Wednesday night as the Arkansas river reached its first crest and prepared for a fresh onslaught on the dikes along the murky borders.

Two more levees broke Wednesday half a dozen others were on the verge of giving way and in several towns backwaters forced hundreds of residents to abandon their homes. The breaks occurred at Ned's Lake outside Fort Smith and Van Buren and at Cadron Bottoms near Morrilton, flooding about 45,000 acres.

Two squads of militiamen called out by Governor Fulton patrolled levees in front of Pine Bluff, forming guard lines to keep spectators back as 500 men built up the protecting wall with bagging. One hundred convicts from Tucker penal farm were called to the work as the first of a daily army assignment of 50,000 sacks came in by special baggage car. An additional 50 negro convicts were ordered to the scene.

Although the Arkansas's threat was the most widespread, a similar critical situation prevailed on the White and Ouachita and lesser streams throughout the state, and the backwater hazard was general.

Already above 25 feet here, the Arkansas was forecast to rise to 31 feet by Saturday, reaching 32 at Pine Bluff the following day.

The White was due to full slightly at Batesville Thursday night, but was predicted to reach 32 feet at Newport, 26 or more at Georgetown and 33 at Clarendon within the next few days.

The Ouachita showed a slight fall at Arkadelphia but was still rising at Camden, where 35 feet by Friday was indicated.

Bankhead Gin Tax Raised to 6 Cents

Adjusted to Half of Average Price of 12 Cents, According to Law

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An increase of from 5.67 cents to 6 cents per pound in the cotton ginning tax under the Bankhead act for the 1935 crop was announced by the AAA Wednesday.

This announcement followed repetition of a statement by Secretary Wallace that a loan would be made on the 1935 crop but the amount had not been determined.

The AAA announced that 12 cents per pound had been determined as the average price of lint cotton on the designated spot cotton markets for a representative period. Under the Bankhead act the rate of the ginning tax is fixed at 50 per cent of the pro-rated price, but in no event at less than five cents per pound. The price determination for the 1934-35 season was 11.34 cents per pound, with the tax at 5.67 cents.

The ginning tax is collected on all cotton ginned in excess of allotments under the act.

Coercion Charged in Trial of Hauptmann, as Appeal Is Aired

14 New Jersey Judges Hear Defendant's Attorneys Behind Locked Doors at Trenton Court of Errors and Appeals

TRENTON, N. J.—(AP)—Attorneys for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, condemned to die for the murder of Baby Charles Lindbergh, Jr., argued to New Jersey's high court Thursday that he had been unfairly tried.

The pleas were heard by the 14 judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals behind locked doors.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the condemned appellant's wife, was denied admittance, as was Hauptmann's spiritual adviser, the Rev. D. G. Werner. Hauptmann's brief charged that the state wrongfully used varying theories on how the Lindbergh baby met death. It called the trial summation by Attorney General Wilentz "inflammatory," charged that he "bulldozed" the defendant, and contended that the trial should have been conducted in Mercer county, where the baby's body was found.

Land Purchase Bill Nears Completion

Social Security Measure Given Final Approval by the Senate

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate moved toward action Thursday on the rewritten Bankhead bill authorizing a billion dollars of bonds to assist farm tenants and share-croppers to buy farms with long-term loans.

Attorney General Cummings said the Department of Justice would make a full investigation of charges of "inefficiency, graft and favoritism" in departmental bureaus made by Ewing Mitchell, ousted assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Security Bill Passes

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The administration's vast social security plan, calling for the biggest tax program in the nation's history, Wednesday was shoved through the senate by a 76 to 6 majority and thereby assured final enactment.

Despite scattered protests from both the Democratic and Republican sides that parts of the bill were unconstitutional, opposition melted when it came to a record vote on the measure proposed by President Roosevelt as necessary to "remove certain hazards and vicissitudes of life" for Americans.

It was sent back to the house for action on senate amendments, including one added Wednesday to exempt private pension systems. In the main, however, it went through the senate in a form closely approximating that recommended by the president.

Administration spokesmen defended its constitutionality, and predicted an early settlement of Senate-House differences.

Important Features

Although it excludes farm labor, domestic, casual, governmental and charity workers, the bill would create a huge national unemployment reserve. Supporters said that it would cover nearly 25,000,000 people who would draw from $10 to $85 a month after they reach 65.

Beginning next month it would offer $15 of federal money a month, if matched by state funds, for every needy individual over 65 or needy blind persons of any age. States without pension plans would not have to match the federal fund for the first two years.

It also would appropriate about $50,000,000 for dependent and crippled children, mothers aid and other welfare work, all of which must be matched by the states.

Eventually the bill contemplates that about 25,000,000 workers will be covered by state unemployment insurance funds to take care of them during periods of temporary idleness.

The measure contemplates eventual expenditures of between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 a year, more than the normal present cost of running the entire government.

Liquor Seizures Total 250 Gallons

A. W. Cobb Place, Raided Second Time in 2 Weeks, Nets 6 Gallons

Continuing their drive on Hempstead county bootleggers, Sheriff Jim Bearden, his deputies and revenue agents descended upon the A. W. Cobb store and tourist camp near Rose Hill cemetery Thursday morning, seizing six gallons of untaxed liquor concealed in the store building.

It was the second raid on Cobb within the past two weeks, the first raid netting half a gallon.

Sheriff Bearden said Cobb would be charged with concealing liquor on which no tax had been paid, and arraigned Friday before U. S. Commissioner Phillips at Texarkana.

Sheriff Bearden said the raid Thursday brought the total number of gallons of seized illicit liquor to more than 250 gallons within the past five weeks.

More than 100 gallons of moonshine was seized while being transported into Hempstead from Miller and Garland counties.

The largest haul was a 50-gallon cargo from Garland county, intercepted four weeks ago. The second largest was 23 gallons, stopped by the sheriff's department near Emmet last Saturday.

Participating officers Thursday besides the sheriff were deputies R. O. Robins, Lee Diehl, Reginald Bearden and Revenue Agents Van Sickle, Mitchell and Shipp.

YOUR HEALTH

Acute Abdominal Pains Are Most Serious

Of all the pains and aches suffered by human beings, the most serious, probably, are sudden, acute pains in the abdomen. This is especially true if the victim is a child. When these pains occur, a doctor should be called at once.

Such pains very frequently indicate appendicitis. Here is a typical example. Child, 4 or 5 years old, suddenly quits playing, runs to its mother, complains of pains in the "tummy," and wants to lie down.

The child may be nauseated, and accordingly vomit. The pain may vanish in a little while, only to crop up again when the child returns to its play. If the doctor is summoned, and takes the child's temperature, it will be found to have a slight fever.

A count of the white cells in the blood should be taken, and thorough examination made of the abdomen in the region of the appendix.

In such cases, prompt treatment is of utmost importance. Formation of pus and consequent rupture of the appendix, causing the pus to pour into the abdominal cavity, may result in death, whereas the prompt surgical operation needed to avoid this danger is a simple one and seldom results fatally.

Appendicitis isn't the only reason for abdominal pains. Intussusception—the drawing of one part of a bowel into another—may be responsible. This results in complete blocking of the bowel, which might become severe, result in gangrene and eventual death.

It is important that immediate steps be taken to remove from the intestines a part that has been pushed into them, and start the natural flow along the bowels.

The intestines, however, may be blocked in other ways. In any event, though, earliest possible diagnosis is necessary, because this is a serious condition.

Its sudden onset is indicated by a severe pain in the middle of the abdomen, accompanied by vomiting. The pain is like that of colic.

At first the bowel may suddenly empty itself, but, after this first emptying, further action does not occur. The blocking may result from a band or adhesions, a twisting of a loop of the bowel, or, rarely, a collection of worms in the bowel.

Peritonitis, brought on by severe inflammation of the membrane which lines the abdominal cavity, is the most serious condition that can occur in the abdomen. The infection may come from within the bowel or from some other cause.

Peritonitis is always associated with a high fever and severe prostration, and with it, too, prompt action is of utmost importance if life is to be saved.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Like Kittens, Baby Keeps Stepping.
We think puppies are cut when they run around and chase their tails, or chew up anything but our best hat. And aren't kittens just too adorable when they hump their backs and hop across the room on a bias?

But the baby "homo sapiens," actually a pup or a kitten until he is four years old, is a different matter. Toward him we adopt an attitude of criticism if he is too active, yet it is just as natural for him to be cubbish as the few-month-old youngsters of the lower animals.

It is well known that the intelligence of a species has everything to do with maturing. As man is the most intelligent of all, his offspring take much longer to pull out of the baby-hood stage.

We think a baby of two should have some sense or at least obey better than he does. He has much less sense than we give him credit for, actually, and as for obeying, there won't be much spontaneous obedience, except through fear and habit. Naturally habit is the best. This is why regular routine of the daily care should be observed.

One thing that puzzles the average mother is this inability to "sit still." It is absolutely foreign to his nature to do either. All through childhood there is this pull toward action and what appears to us silly antics without reason.

There are two very important reasons. The first is that muscles not only have to be exercised in order to grow, but they must achieve flexibility. Moreover, they have to get in "rhythms" with the called co-ordination.

We are not born with co-ordination. A new baby has no control whatever. It is going to take him four years, and then some, to work out the rudiments of this code between muscle and mind. It will take years more to perfect it. If he wants to be a good golfer or a circus performer or good batter it will take him longer than that. Few of us ever reach any degree of perfection without extra training.

The second reason for the constant stirring of a young child is his inability to "concentrate" on any thing for more than a few minutes. You may make him sit down and play with blocks or show him pictures, but he quickly tires of both. He even tires of his shabby horse and wagon, so there is little use in saying, "Be a good boy and go and get your wagon again" if he has tired of it momentarily.

To be sure, there is a difference in children. Some are quick to respond to orders but keeping quiet when their dispositions are so inclined, and those who lack energy from some physical cause may be of the "still" type. The mother of a rough-and-tumble child, either boy or girl, looks at this quiet child and for some reason or other decides it is the standard of childhood and her own the exception. She may be happier to know it is the reverse.

Her own ingenuity will be needed to train the little tyke in the gentler arts. He needs something off, and must be taught social ways, but she should not be discouraged when he forgets and keeps on forgetting. Nature is a strong rival indeed. As life opens up and his interests widen, he will be quiet more of the time. If he is busy enough with his hands he won't need to say "Sit down and be still." Just wait until he reaches the lazy stage. Then, shall be begging, "For goodness sake, get up off that chair and do something."

"The first thing for a woman with dark, dry skin to remember is that she must give her complexion plenty of light lubrication," says Dolores Del Rio, beautiful brunette screen star. And Dolores ought to know. She's

CHAPTER XXXVII
SALLY was trying on her wedding dress.

"Oh-oo—I said Annabel Matthis, coming in from a late breakfast, her negligee wrapped tightly around her. 'I've heard it's bad luck to try it all on together, Sally. Don't you think?'"

"Nonsense," cried Sally, turning on one heel and prouetting with a satisfied backward glance at the image reflected in the long mirror set in the bathroom door. "How could it be bad luck now, with the wedding tomorrow and the rehearsal tonight? By the way, has Joe gone to the golf club? Because I want to have an early dinner. We're going over to the church at 8 o'clock. Daddy is being so silly about it all. He still wants us to keep it a secret, although his darned old election was yesterday and he got in, as usual."

Annabel, mystified at this involvement, promptly said so, and Sally had to explain, with some impatience.

"He didn't want anyone to know about the wedding before, so the local storekeepers wouldn't get down on him. You see, I bought all my things in the city—naturally. And so the invitations all go out by hand this morning."

"Joe," said Annabel who didn't at all and who thought the whole thing sounded "crazy" if you ask me. She was to confide this information later to her stalwart Joseph, who would agree heartily.

Annabel was a big, rosy girl of 24 with blond hair which she coiled neatly at the nape of her rather short neck. She had bright, small eyes and a hearty laugh. Sally hated her rather cordially and loathed the idea of having her cousin as bridesmaid. Of course Annabel would be a foil for her own petite brunet looks. That was one consolation.

"It's very pretty," said Annabel presently of the silver and white dress with its demurely cut neck and flowing sleeves. "But don't you think it's just a bit tight?"

Sally, who insisted on having all her frocks fitted so that the "melted-and-poured-into-it" look would be definitely stressed, frowned.

"Not at all," she said, Annabel, yawning and accepting the hint, trailed her negligee out of the door and said she guessed she'd go and do her nails.

SALLY lingered, bating to take off the frock. She had designed it herself. She was intoxicated with her own appearance. A pity she couldn't call up some of the photographers of the big city papers, so that they could print her picture in the rotogravure sections later. She might take a chance and call them just before dinner. Her father surely couldn't expect this wedding a secret forever. He was just being stuffy about it!

She tried a number of expressions in the glass. Perhaps demureness would be best of all. She smiled at herself, drawing her red lips carefully back from her teeth as movie stars did. The effect, she thought, was enchanting.

She called to Frieda, the housemaid, to help her out of the wedding dress. And had Frieda telephoned to Isabel at the beauty shop to come and do her hair at four? Well, that was all right then.

The plump German girl giggled over the fastenings. Ja, it was a pretty dress all right.

Sally frowned over the clumsy fingers, fumbling at the snappers and hooks. When she was Lady Carden she would have a French maid to go in and out with piles of frilled underthings, to answer the telephone, to say, "Yes, Madame," and, "No, Madame," with just the proper note of adoration.

Sally hadn't the faintest notion what Michael's inheritance amounted to but she thought of it always. "In the neighborhood of a million." She couldn't possibly have told where she got the idea. But Sally was purposely vague in some matters. Where other things were concerned, such as the turn of a turn of a coin, she was exceedingly definite. She knew what she wanted.

Everything seemed to go wrong this morning. She was putting on a brand new pair of silk stockings—a sheer ones with the finest and most delicate of cloths—when she started a great run in one of them. Then she broke a fingernail and, just before a manicure, that was without a doubt the most embarrassing happening in all the world. Tears of rage stood in her eyes at the sight.

ENTERED enters from 57th street called to say they couldn't get the little rakes she ordered. They were making different ones now. Just as good. But Sally had wanted the ones with the roses on them. She was furious.

Then when she picked up an afternoon newspaper she saw that rain was prophesied for the morning. She flung the sheet from her bed in disgust. Rain for her beautiful wedding dress and those utterly exquisite white and silver silks! She just wouldn't have it, that was all! Isabel, coming in with her kit of tools, found her in a vile humor. Isabel knew that something important and exciting was afoot but she hadn't yet heard the news of the impending marriage.

"Big party on tonight?" Isabel rejoiced in a treasury of village gossip and couldn't quite understand being kept in the dark.

"Yes—no—never mind."

Isabel felt quite buffy. Who did Miss Sally Moon think she was, anyhow? Getting the big head, was she? Isabel strongly disapproved. Everybody had done a lot of talking about Sally's engagement to Michael Heathcote. Isabel, polishing and snipping, applying dye

I'd like to leave but daffodils to mark my little way, to leave but tulips red and white behind me as I stray;
(I'd like to pass away from earth and feel) I'd left behind
But roses and forget-me-nots for all who come to find.
I'd like to sow the barren spots with all the flowers of earth,
To leave a path where those who come should find but gentle mirth;
And when at last I'm called upon to join the heavenly throng
I'd like to feel along my way I'd left no sign of wrong.
And having lived and having toiled I'd like the world to find
Some touch of beauty that my soul had left behind.—Selected.

AAA Payments in County $344,320

Cotton Comprises Bulk of It, County Agent's Figures Show

Rental and benefit payments totaling $344,320 have been paid to the farmers of this county for cooperating in crop acreage reduction programs since passage of the Agricultural Act in May, 1933, according to Frank R. Stanley, agent.

Payments have been as follows: For cotton, $344,171.59; corn hog, $148.81. A total of 2225 checks for $51,271.50 in first payments under the 1935 cotton adjustment program has been distributed to participating farmers.

"The AAA has been in operation only 26 months, but in that time approximately 2800 farmers have cooperated with the farmers of the nation in improving farm prices by controlling production and through benefit and rental payments," Mr. Stanley said.

He pointed out that income accruing from rental and benefit payments from the AAA is not the most important phase of the adjustment program, and farmers should not lose sight of the primary purpose of the act, that of improvement of farm prices.

In addition to the rental and benefit payments, County Agent Stanley explained that the value of the adjustment program and its effects on farm commodity prices to farmers of the county cannot be estimated, but that it has meant a sizable increase in income.

Land Purchase Bill

would be financed by taxing employers and employees each three per cent on the pay rolls of employees up to $5,000 a year. This is estimated to yield almost $2,000,000 annually by 1950. Companies with approved private pension plans would be exempt.

States Encouraged
To encourage states to set up unemployment reserve laws, the bill would levy a tax on employers of four or more workers beginning at one per cent in 1935 and rising to three per cent by 1938 against their total pay rolls. They would be able to get credit for 90 per cent of the tax if they paid it into state funds. Experts predicted this would raise almost $1,000,000,000 a year.

Five Republicans and one Democrat voted against the bill on final passage. They were Senators Hale, Hastings, McCall, Townsend and Austin. Republicans and Moore, Democrat. Both Virginia senators—Glass and Byrd—were paired against it, however, and Senators Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, and Gore Democrat, Oklahoma, voted "present."

A crowded gallery, which included those who would have a big hand in administration of the law, listened to the final debate on the bill and the swift rejection of amendments which would have curtailed the program.

An amendment by Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, was subsequently adopted to prevent profits from the private pension plans to seep back from the insurance companies to the employers. He would ban insurance companies with directorates interlocking with the employer from handling the insurance, and would outlaw rebates to the company from the insured.

Cotton Fields to Be Surveyed Here

Measuring of Acreage Expected to Be Completed by July 1

All Hempstead county community committeemen working under the provisions of the Bankhead act, were called to the county agent's office in Hope Tuesday morning where they were given instructions as to the measuring of cotton fields in their respective districts. The measurements will establish proof of each farmer's adherence to the terms of his contract with the government covering cotton production for 1935.

The work will be carried on similar to the way it was handled in 1934. Every cotton field in Hempstead county will be measured, whether the owner is a contract signer or a non-signer for the year. All measurements will be turned in to the county agent's office where the totals will be computed to see whether all farmers are living up to the terms of their contracts and leaving out of production the lands which were to be left out under the contracts.

The work will begin next Monday it is announced by the county agent. It will be then before all the forms are in the hands of the community committeemen. There will be no work this year for the committeemen except making the actual measurements and drawing a rough sketch of each farm measured. All computations will be handled by the agent's office.

The work is being commenced a full month earlier this year than it was last, and while the county agent is aware that it cannot be completed by the first of July, he is anxious that as much of it be finished by then as possible. This will depend to a large extent upon the cooperation the farmers give the committeemen when they come to their farms to do the work.

Hope Star
Carrier Boys

Hope Star now employs 15 carrier boys. Each boy is his own merchant and should be paid each Saturday when he calls, as he is required to settle each Saturday night in full with the Hope Star for the papers he receives.

Carriers should not be expected to make repeated calls for collections, when the amount is so small, as the large number of deliveries they make, and the amount of time required in collecting from their customers does not permit this.

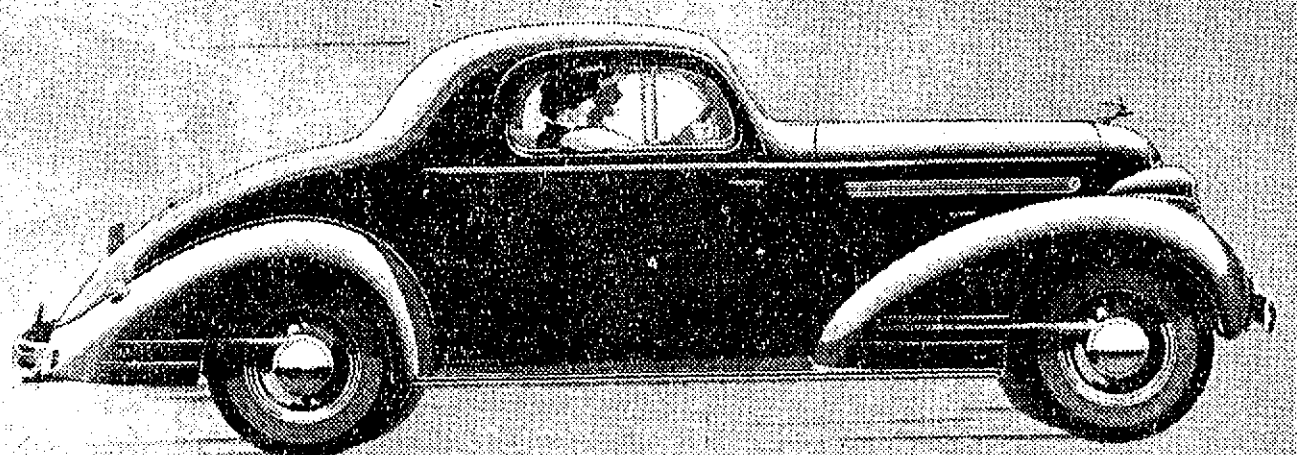

Hope Star deeply appreciates the patronage of every customer, and hopes they will be willing to make it a point to have the 10 cents ready for the carrier when he makes his first call.

Any failure on the part of the subscriber to pay is a direct loss to the young man. Although the amount is small in each individual case, very many such delays and losses could be a serious matter to the carrier that serves you.

McFaddin One of Rotary Directors

Hope Man Among Those Chosen Thursday at Mexico City

BULLETIN
E. F. McFaddin was elected one of five United States directors of the convention of Rotary International Thursday morning in Mexico City, Hope Rotarians were advised. Mr. McFaddin has been president of the local club, governor of the Arkansas (62d) district, and was chairman of the club service committee of Rotary International during the past year.

MEXICO, D. F.—(AP)—A South American was nominated for the presidency of Rotary International for the first time in Rotary's history Wednesday, but the preponderance of United States delegates to the convention here led to the belief his North American rival would be victorious.

The two candidates are Ed R. Johnston, of Roanoke, Va., first vice president in 1933-34 and chairman of the opening plenary session of the convention, and Donato Gaminara of Montevideo, Uruguay, director of Rotary International and present first vice president.

The voting, which will be secret, starts Thursday and the result will be announced Friday. Delegates Wednesday began casting ballots to choose five of the following seven for United States directors: Ed R. Johnston, Lakeland, Fla.; C. Edgar Dreher, Atlantic City; Edward F. McFaddin, Hope, Ark.; George W. Olinger, Denver; Ernest Richard, Alpena, Mich.; Amos O. Squire, Ossining, N. Y.; and Charles L. Wheeler, San Francisco.

Braddock's Win Saves Garden and Promoter James J. Johnston

NEW YORK—"It must be a joke," says James J. Braddock. "I'm champion."

Max Adelbert Baer played the part of the comedian so long that when it came time for him to play straight, the mechanism simply wouldn't function. Braddock's triumph was the biggest upset in the history of the back-busting business.

Baer didn't exactly clown himself out of the heavyweight championship. He was punched out of it, too.

And the California's downfall was a severe blow from the boxing viewpoint. Braddock was supposed to have been through.

Gus the barber and plenty more, from Liverpool to Bangor, had visioned Baer as the hottest thing since Jack Dempsey. Now they are disillusioned. Maybe there aren't any more fighters, after all.

The one to five shot, the one to a thousand shot, the one to a million shot, won. There was little betting on the fight. The odds were prohibitive.

Braddock was a lonely citizen hustling to work on the Jersey docks in the early morning hours three months ago. Now he is the first thing in a heavyweight way that the Irish have had to cheer about since Jim Coffey.

Heon to Garden

The fight was of tremendous importance, and a terrific blow to one group of sports writers in New York, who virtually had run the once powerful Madison Square Garden Corporation out of the cauliflower industry.

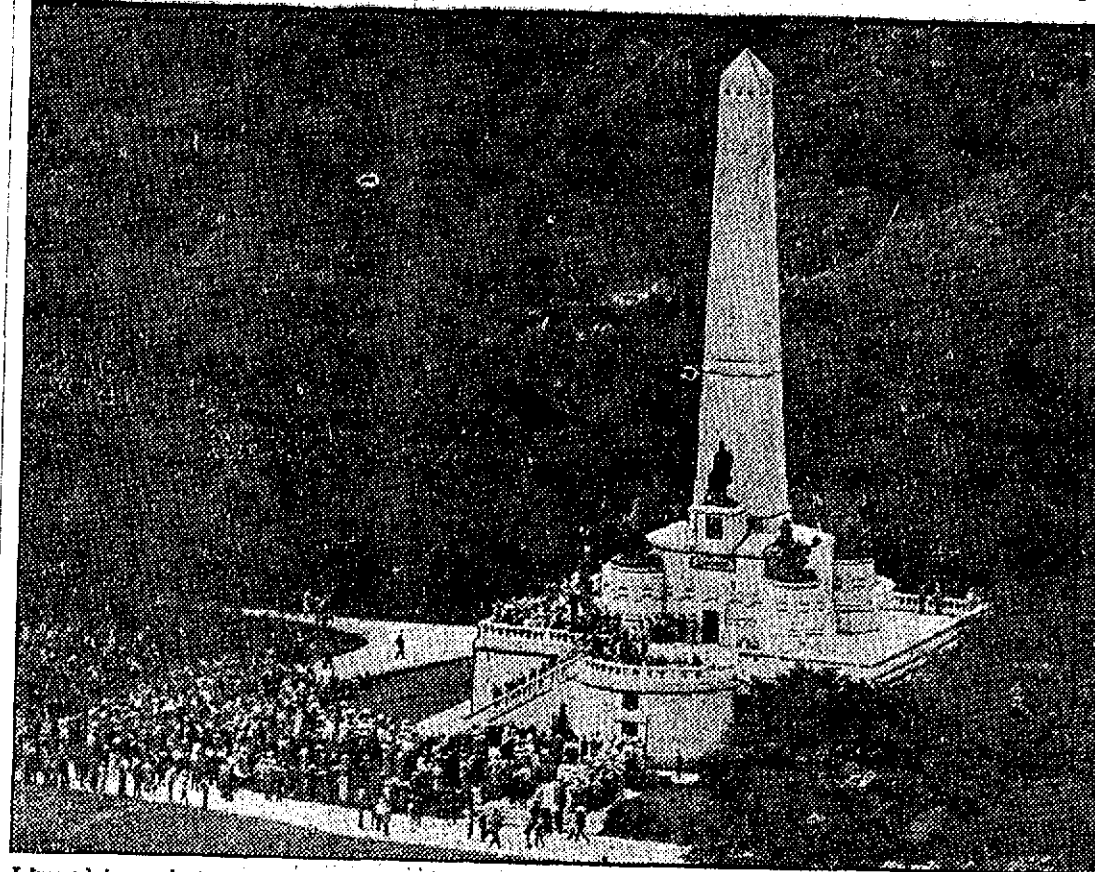

Like everybody else, this group reasoned Baer would knock Braddock out in the process of fulfilling his Garden contract. Then the program was for Baer to meet the winner of the Primo Carnera-Joe Louis encounter of June 25, which is being promoted by the Twentieth Century club for babies.

This setup would have completed the squeezing out of the Garden for the summer.

James J. Johnston, the Garden boxing promoter, was the fellow the group of writers mentioned had aimed at. He'd be lost without the champion, they reasoned.

So it is with a great deal of satisfaction that Johnston views himself today, for he was one of the very few who expressed the opinion that Braddock would win.

G. O. P. Turns Back to Lincoln for Guidance

Lined up in majesty against its background of trees, Abraham Lincoln's tomb was the mecca for Republicans, turning for inspiration back to the martyred president as they gathered in Springfield, Ill., in their "grass roots" convention. Shown here is the throng which made the pilgrimage to the tomb for a memorial service during the convalescence, at which speakers continually dwelt on the principles of Lincoln in calling for the return of Republicans to power.

action that Johnston views himself today, for he was one of the very few who expressed the opinion that Braddock would win.

On top of that, Braddock's smashing victory gives Johnston a new lease on life at the Garden, where he has made matches for four years. The Garden has Braddock signed for the first defense of the title. Thus the grip that the corporation has held on the heavyweights since it was organized by the late Tex Rickard remains unbroken.

I doubt that Braddock being signed would make any difference. He received 17 1/2 per cent of $200,000 for repelling Baer, and appreciates the fact that Johnston yanked him off the Weekweights wharves and relief at $24 a month.

Baer may be gone inside. Even one as young and strong as the Livermore Larruper cannot untrain for 315 days of the year, and then get himself in shape in 50 days.

Braddock beat Baer because the defeated champion either didn't know the first rule in the boxing book, or could do nothing to keep the other fellow from taking full advantage of it. After all, the clowning which Baer went so far as to carry into the 15th and final round, didn't make much difference.

Braddock was instructed to jab with his left and keep moving to his right. That, it was figured, would keep the challenger out of the range of Baer's devastating right, his most formidable weapon. Baer didn't have enough sense to feint with, or swing, or hook his left, which Braddock would have walked into.

So it was that the longshoreman successfully carried out his program to the finish.

In winning, Braddock restored the heavyweight championship to the fight mob. The Irishman isn't interested in pictures, radio, or night clubs. He carries himself and looks like a fighting man.

France Angered by Anglo-Nazi Pact

May Launch Armament Race Following German Sea Concessions

BULLETIN
LONDON, Eng. (Copyright AP)—The British government took up Thursday the twofold task of appeasing French fears regarding a naval agreement with Germany and seeking an immediate cessation of the powers concerned regarding a Western European air pact.

PARIS, France.—(AP)—France is discussing enlisting her navy in answer to the Anglo-German naval agreement.

A naval race was forecast as a result of the agreement allowing Germany naval tonnage 35 per cent of Great Britain's.

Members of the Chamber of Deputies naval committee, which met yesterday, said its consensus was that the Washington 1922 Treaty was dead and France was free to build whatever warships she chose. The majority favored building up the French fleet at once.

Premier Pierre Laval told the chamber's Foreign Affairs Committee that he was "stunned by the Anglo-German agreement. Members of the navy committee used similar expressions.

35% of Britain's
LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Great Britain continuing naval negotiations with Germany to arrange details of their new 100-35 naval ratio pact, will seek to spread Germany's future naval building over the longest period possible.

A supplementary agreement now being discussed with Gen. Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's naval ambassador, and his colleagues will tentatively determine the dates of construction, size and types of Nazi warships.

Britain would like to spread the Reich's construction over seven years, while Germany was anxious to complete her building program in four years.

While the ratio agreement limiting the Reich's fleet to 35 per cent of Britain's both by total tonnage and generally by categories, is binding upon Britain and Germany regardless of what other powers do, supplementary action will depend on their action.

the similar discouragement of "unwieldy and unnecessary" corporate surpluses.

The fifth proposal, he said, could not "adequately be debated" in the time remaining this session, and leaders agreed that he felt it would be all right to let that go over. But because he had made the qualification on holding companies, the interpretation of the rest of his tax program as "must."

Encountered Opposition
It was disclosed, too, that the president encountered vigorous opposition from some of his advisers who thought he should let the share-the-wealth plan go over until next year. That was indicated by a leader close to the president who said privately: "This plan hasn't a chance in hell of going through congress this session."

Nevertheless, legislative machinery was put to work on the message. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, arranged to discuss it Thursday with members of the house ways and means committee, to which the plan was referred.

A speedy showdown appeared likely in the senate. Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, said the finance committee would meet Wednesday to consider the $500,000,000 house-approved bill to extend nuisance taxes and said the new program was up to the house.

But Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, a committee member, announced he would offer the inheritance, income and corporation tax recommendations as amendments, in addition to his own plan to lower income tax exemptions, and that of Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan to levy an "excess profits" tax.

Some senate Democratic leaders, however, hoped that the big program—which they regarded as a drastic innovation in the present tax system—would go over until next session.

Liberals Elated
First reactions at the capitol showed some division in Republican ranks over the proposals. Republican liberals were joyous at the president having taken the step. More conservative minority members opposed the plan.

sonville, Fla., told the Alpha Tau Omega National Congress, "crime will destroy our government and our people."

Advocating the bar association's demand for a Department of Justice in every state patterned after the federal government's organization of G-men, Mr. Loftin emphasized the vital importance of a "sound public sentiment" for law enforcement.

Crime in the United States, he said, costs 12 billions each year, and racketeering, 15 billions annually—the first cost of maintaining the federal government in normal times, and the latter, more than five times the amount spent on public schools of the nation.

"Each man, woman and child is paying to the racketeer $120 every year," he said. He cited other statistics showing that "we have more than double the murders per 100,000 with first lien on a radical issue which can be used to sour Huey's show and divert left-wingers to the Roosevelt tent.

The New Deal

And now, by an abortive filibuster designed to embarrass the administration, Huey has lost most of such sympathy as he had in the senate.

A group of progressive and Republican colleagues had been using or abetting the Kingfish in some cases, believing that the shrewd Huey, for all his faults, was often of value.

But when Huey kept the senate up all through the night he merely made everybody sore. Progressives such as La Follette of Wisconsin and Schwellenbach of Washington joined in the effort of administration leaders to blackmail him into submission with parliamentary weapons.

They felt his filibuster, with the alleged purpose of bringing New Deal appointments under senate control or to defeat the NRA bill, was so hopeless as to be without excuse, and blamed it on Long's egotism.

Thus Huey's prestige as a dangerous, effective demagog has dropped several notches.

Huey's Props Fell Out
Huey's post-mortem story is that he would have been in position to lead a filibuster from that Friday morning to Sunday, when NIRA would have expired, if his "support" hadn't failed him.

Lehall of Minnesota had a speech read and was eventually stifled, but Gore of Oklahoma—for whose amendment Huey was supposedly filibustering—was talked out of helping Huey by Pat Harrison.

Tydings of Maryland, whom Huey expected to filibuster pending the second speech to which Huey was entitled, just disappeared.

You can't say Huey is "stopped." No one will be surprised if his importance as a thorn in the administration's flank reaches new heights.

Affidavits he presented to the senate against Jim Farley were so sensational that only a heavy administration majority and the anti-Huey feeling prevented an investigation.

One Long Headache
Headaches never stop for the folks who now have the messy Subsidized Homesteads program in charge. No more crushing blow could have been received than the recent telegram of a traveling inspector who found an Illinois project short on candidates for the homesteads.

The wire said, in effect: "Would it be all right if we advertised for tenants?"

No Gag for Admirals
The case of Admiral Yates Stirling, who caused congressional commotion by his alleged implication in a newspaper article that other nations should gang together and war on Soviet Russia, led Senator Gerald P. Nye to ask the State Department if there were no regulations requiring generals and admirals to submit speeches and articles before delivery or publication.

The State Department, which sometimes gets rather sore over the degree to which it feels the navy dictates American foreign policy, enlightened him.

Naval and military officers must submit such speeches or documents to their superiors AFTER delivery or publication.
